Have vou never done so? inquir ed his friend.

'No; I tried it on last winter, but the Governor cut up rough, and wouldn't stand it.'

Can you sit a lap / asked Harry. 'Can you sa a ray her, just a very few,' was the confident reply:

Well, you must come to Coverdale, in the Christmas holidays, and I'll mount you and take you out with me: I mean to get up a stud, and hunt regularly this season, observed Har-

Won't that be jolly just—I'll come, whether they'll let me or not, depend upon it; but now this is the grass field, let's have a race for a wind up. So saying, Master Tom laid his whip smartly across the pony's sho lder, and dashed off, while Coverdale gradually giving his spirited but per-feetly bro en horse the rein soon overtook him. A brushing gall p of five minutes brought th m to the border of the field, which was surrounded by a ditch and bank, with a sufficiently high rail at top to constitute an awkward leap.

'How are we going to find our way out?' inquired Harry.

Get off, pull down a rail, then jump it," was the reply.

'Yes, that will be the bes! way for you and the pony,' returned Cover-dale, but Ill take it as it is. I've never yet had a chance of trying Lancelot at a stiff fence, and I want to see how he'll ac ! don't you a tempt to follow me; as soon as I am over I'll dismount and pull down he rail fer you.'

As he spoke Harry put his horse in motion, cantered him up to the fence, and faced him ut it. Sir Lancelot did not belie the cha actor that had been given of him-as he approached the bank he quickened his pace of his ewn accord, g thered his legs well under him, and then ris ng to the leap, sprang over with a motion so easy and elastic hat his rider scarcely a. peared to move in the saidle. The descent on he fart er side was steeper than Harry had exp cted, and the leap a together might be considered a difficult one. Delighted with his norse's perf rmaner, Harry pulled up, and turned, with the intention o alighting in order to remove a rail of the fence and thus faci itate the ransit of Tom. and the pony; when to his alarm and vexution he perceived t at the by, deceived by the appuent eac with which he had accomplished the task, (a delu ive appearance, produced as much by the skill and coolness of the rider as by the power and excellent framing of the norse) and determine ed to display his prowess by following him ; nor could Harry inter ere to prevent him, for at the moment he turn ed, Tom was in the act of gallopin. him was to shout Give the pony hi head and hold him tight with you! knees,' and to await the result. The pony, exeit d by seeing its companion on the other side, taced the leap bolds ly, and cleared the ditch and bank, but catching its hoofs aga not the reil, fe 1. pitch og its rider over its head into the field beyond, where he lay as if stunned. In an instant Harry had sprang from his saddle and lifted him in his arms. 'Tha k Heaven!' he exclaimed, as the boy opened his eyes, and, perceiving Coverdale bending over him, smiled his thanks. 'You don't feel as if you had hur! yourself any where, do you?"

'Al right!' was the reply. 'I feel a little bit shaky and confused; rather as if somebody had gone and kicked me into the middle of next week, that's

Then you've escaped more casily than you had any right to expect, you heedless, impetaous voung monkey, returned Coverdale, sharply. 'You must have been mad to suppose that a half-bred, thick-headed heas like that pony would carry you over such a sence as that. Why, I know men, who call themselves good riders, who would refuse it, unless they were very well mounted.

If the brute did not car y me over he shot me over, and that did just as well, was the car less reply. But I say, Mr. Coverdale, only look at his knees! Oh! shan't we get into ! jolly scrape just.

Thus appealed to, Harry turned to examine the pony, which, in his anxiety for the safety of the boy, he had hitherto forgotten. The result of his scrutiny was by no means satisfactory.

'He has broken both knees !' he exclaimed: 'the right one is cut severe ly, and however favorably it may go on, there wil always remain a sear you've knocked ten pounds off th pony's price by that exploit of yours master Tom, besides rendering the animal un-afe for your sister to ride. You've put your foot in it as well as I, Mr. Coverdale, returned the young imp, grinning. You promised Alice you would do your best to keep me, and the pony too, in proper order, you know!"

"Why, you ungrateful young scamp, I'm sure I told you not to attempt the leap, replied. Harry, restrain g a strong inclination to lay his horse-whip across the young rickie's shoulders.

MARINE ITEMS .- Brig Edmiston Brothers while going out of the harbor yesterday morning, in charge of a pilot, the tide being flood and the wind light, drifted so near to the west shore of Goet Island as to render it necessary for her to anchor. She set a signal, and the steamer Jenny Lind, which had just arrived from East Greenwich, started to her assistance, as did also the pilot boat Sovereign of the Sens. Before the steamer reached her she had worked off shore by means of an anchor and lest January on Fisher's Island, commend worked oil shore by means of the pilot ed running between Stonington and New Sch Eliza S., Laue, for New York, in working out past Fort Point yesterday morning, grounded on a bed of rocks, but came off with the flood tide without damage, and proceeded.

The Fall River Daily News thus itemizes on the relative speed of the steamer Bradford Durfee of that city, and the Perry of our own:

own:
"We understand that her rival, the Perry, of Newport, acknowledges this season that the Durfee beats her. No such thing as racing is sallowed, but then trips together in going up are pleasantly exciting."

As much mistaken, man, as though you had lost your-inner garment. Our Perry, like ber illustrious namesake, never surrenders; nor would you dare say it, were it not that the change in the Perry's time on and after next Monday, will cut off all chance of a further trial till long after the above bluster of yours is forgotten. Come down here and we will treat you to a blue egg and "suthin" to drink

CORONER'S INQUEST .- A Coroner's inquest was held yesterday afternoon by Benjamin maish, zu, wsq., Curoner, upon the body of a female child, which was funed on the grounds of Mr. James Watson, confer of South Touro street and Buth road. Dr. Dunn testified that he thought that the child was born aliye, tu died soon after its birth, prububly from neglect; it was wrapped in a piece of close. There did not annear to be any of clotte. There did not appear to be any marks o. violence upon it, and it probably had not been dead long. The verdict of the Jury was that the child came to its death from causes to the Jury unknown. The body was discovered by some laborers who were at work on the grounds about 12 o'clock yesterday noon.

We learn from the Fall River Daily News, that the steamer Bradford Durfee will make a trip to Newport this evening from that place, with delegates to the Friends' meeting, arriving probably about 7 o'clock; also again to-morrow evening, arriving about the same hour, and remaining till Sunday evening. Hack drivers will please make a note. The boat will probably come in at Long Wharf.

If It will be seen by advertisement, that the steamer Perry commences, next Monday, her summer arrangement between this city and Providence, connecting with the various railroads from that city, and with the Duy Line to New York. Travellers will find this a pleasant route, enhanced by the concleous don the popular Clork of the boat, C. F. Stanhope, Correspondence of the Newsi WESTERLY, R. I.

June 9th, 1859, MR. EDITOR : Before the mail leaves, this morning, I will collect a few facts and ttems for your columns, this week.

This village has recently met with a severe loss in the death of one of its most u right, enterprising, and respected citizens, Orlando Smith. He died at his residence, on Monday morning last, of brain fever. Mr. Smith was extensively engaged in the business of quarrying, dressing and exporting granite, and gave employment to some 125 or 150 persons. Probably there is no other person in this section of the State whose death would be so severely felt, by so large a number. As I heard remarked recently, he sent off rocks and brought back gold, and by the circulation of the latter, added greatly to the business enterprise of the community. As he had no partner, Mr. Alfred Burdick has been appointed to earry on the business until the contracts on hand are finished .--That done, and his affairs settled, the quarries, three in number, will, I am told, pass into new hands.

On the evening of May 24th, Bishop Clarke delivered a sermon in the Episco pal Church of this village. I did not have the pleasure of hearing it, but have been told by these who were present, that it was a very able, practical, and interesting discourse. After its delivery several candidates received the rite of confirmation.

On the 25th of May the Westerly Rifle Company paraded here. They were favored with a beautiful day, and made a ery fine appearance.

On May 31st the Steamer C. Vanderbilt, which you will recollect went ashare York, in a repaired condition, and under the command of Capt. D. B. Sturgis .-Capt. H. C. Lampher, pilot.

For the went of something more im portant I was about to speak of the weather, but you and your readers, doubtless, know all about that. That wise weatherprophet, uninspired (?) clerk, ought to hide his diminished head in-chame.

As you enjoin brevily on your correspenden s, and wish them to write the oftener, I will conclude, promising to Write FRANK.

BOATKEEPER FOR WICKFORD.—Geo. Holloway, son of Capt. Thomas S. The entire cost of the Sickles trial to the Associated Press of New York, was $3,682,29; of which sum $3,100 was for telegraph tolks. The whole number of words telegraphed was 152,540.
